MIX CONSOLES DEMOCRATS AT STATE SESSION

Republicans Named to Committee Chairmanships; Callahan Is Finance Head.

BOISE, Jan. 8. (AP)—Democratic Lieutenant Governor G. P. Mix consoled other democrats today because they did not get chairmanships and positions on legislative committees selected by the republican majority.

Although many democrats were named on committees chairmanships and other important positions all went to republicans.

It may be a "healthy American custom" Mix told fellow democrats for the majority party to have all the chairmanships and the control of all committees but "might is not always right."

Amend Rules.

The committee assignments for the senate went over without opposition after rules of the senate were amended to give the majority party supervision of appointments. The vote split 23 to 21 on amending the rules, the minority democrats voting to have the presiding officer hold authority to appoint committees without supervision.

Both houses of the legislature cut their session short today out of respect for Peter G. Johnston, Blackfoot, former speaker of the house, who died yesterday.

To Senator George A. Meffan, Canyon, went the honor of introducing the first bill in the senate. He would have the corporation law revised to give privately endowed colleges the privilege of having out of state directors on their boards.

This bill he explained was particularly adaptable to the Northwest Nazarene college, Nampa, which he said, received about 90 per cent of its financial support from outside the state and whose donors he felt should have some voice in expenditures.

Callahan Named.

The 25 senate committees and their chairmanships follow: Agriculture, Graves, Twin Falls; banks and banking, Halferty, Valley; corporations, Clark, Clark; counties and county boundaries, Schuldberg, Franklin; education, Hanson, Teton; educational institutions, Rowe, Latah; engrossed bills, Beymer, Minidaka; enrolling bills, Leslie, Boundary.

Finance, Callahan, Shoshone; fish and game, Van Winkle, Blaine; forestry, Halferty, Valley; highways, Isaacson, Oneida; immigration and labor, Keith, Owyhee; irrigation and water resources, Wiley, Bingham; Journal, Blair, Bonner; judiciary, Nelson, Kootenai; judiciary, Graves, Twin Falls; livestock, Lau, Caribou; military and Indian affairs, Wiley, Bingham.

Mines and mining, Baker, Custer; privileges and elections, Rich, Casta; printing, Isaacson, Oneida; public lands, Barron, Camas; public health, Keith, Owyhee; state affairs, Robertson, Washington; joint rules, Van Winkle, Blaine.

DAIRYMEN APPEAL FOR FINANCIAL AID

Seek $25,000 Appropriation to Stamp Out Herd Infection.

PAYETTE, Jan. 8. (AP)—Idaho dairymen voted to ask the legislature for a $25,000 appropriation to help stamp out infectious abortion among dairy herds today.

The action was taken at the annual meeting of the Idaho State Dairymen's association.

H. L. Meyers of Boise was reelected president and P. W. Atkeson, professor of dairy husbandry at the University of Idaho, secretary.

M. G. Neale, president of the University of Idaho, delivered the principal address. Besides the disease appropriation dairymen asked the legislature for $20,000 for the next biennium for promoting fairs and dairy shows.

For the fourth consecutive year, Mrs. Minnie Miller, owner of the 1000 Springs ranch, won the loving cup awarded to the best producing cow in private Idaho herds.

WILL INVESTIGATE W. W. P. FINANCES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—The financial affairs of the Washington Water Power company of Spokane will be investigated, beginning January 15, by the federal trade commission. The company is a subsidiary of the American Power and Light company, member of the Electric Bond and Share group of utilities.

RAILROAD MERGER MAY BE OPPOSED

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8. (AP)—The proposed merger of eastern railroads into four major systems will meet the opposition of railroad labor organizations if it means dismissal of employees, according to George M. Harrison of Cincinnati, grand president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks.

Harrison told the Cleveland council of the brotherhood last night that if all the nation's railroads are consolidated in 21 systems, "which seems to be the ultimate goal," half a million employees could be eliminated.

POPE ATTACKS BIRTH CONTROL, DIVORCES

Says "Companionate" Marriage Is Sin; Gives Broad Views.

ROME, Jan. 8. (AP)—The full power and authority of the Roman Catholic church were invoked by Pope Pius XI today to uphold the sanctity of Christian marriage and to stamp out the practices of birth control, "companionate" marriage, and divorce.

In the most swelling exposition of the church's vews on matrimony in many years he condemned the use of contraception, abortion, sterilization or any other means to prevent the fruitfulness of wedlock.

His pronouncement came in the form of a long encyclical, the first of its kind in 50 years of ecclesiastical history. In it he enjoined his bishops to propagate the church's view that marriage is indissoluble except by death and that the family "is more sacred than the state."

Birth control is a deed "shameful and vicious" and a "horrible crime" the pontiff enjoined the faithful.

Branded With Sin.

"Any use whatsoever of matrimony exercised in such a way that the act is deliberately frustrated in its natural power," he said, "is an offense against the law of God and nature and those who indulge such are branded with the guilt of a grave sin."

"Companionate" marriage came in for an equally vigorous denunciation.

Here are the high lights from the papal encyclical on marriage:

Marriage—"Chasted wedlock— . . . is the principle and foundation of domestic society and therefore of all human intercourse."

"Family Is Sacred."

The family—"The family is more sacred than the state and men are begotten not for the earth but for heaven and eternity."

Divorce—The sacrament of marriage carries with it a "perpetual and indissoluble bond which can not be dissolved by civil law."

Birth control — Contraception in any form is an "offense against the law of God and nature."

"Companionate" and "experimental" marriages—are "hateful abominations . . . which reduce our truly cultured natures to the barbarous standards of savage people."

Sterilization—"Magistrates have no direct power over the bodies of their subjects. Therefore when no crime has taken place they can never tamper with the integrity of the body either for reasons of eugenics or for any other reasons."

Abortion—in any circumstances is "against the precepts of God and of nature."

Woman—"If the man is the head, the woman is the heart and as he occupies the chief place in ruling so may she . . . claim for herself the chief place in love."

The state—"Such social and economic measures must be set up as will enable every head of a family to earn as much as according to his station in life, is necessary for himself, his wife and for rearing his children."

YOUTH ESCAPES.

SANDPOINT, Jan. 8. (AP)—Orville Hatfield, one of two youths identified by finger prints here yesterday as fugitives from the Monroe, Wash., reformatory, escaped from the city jail late last night by breaking a lock from an iron door.

HOLLYWOOD READY TO MEET GANGLAND

Actors and Actresses Have Bodyguards; Carry Weapons.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Jan. 8. (AP)—The kidnaping in New York last night of Lita Grey Chaplin and her robbery of jewels led members of the film colony to take renewed precautions today.

Hollywood, realizing it offers an attractive field for gangsters and kidnapers, is prepared to meet them. Several stars have bodyguards. Others keep their chauffeurs armed and practically employ watchmen.

Rex Bell, Clara Bow's "boy friend," has a permit to carry a pistol but says he seldom goes armed.

Janet Gaynor, Edmund Lowe and Winfield Sheehan, a film executive, recently obtained permits for their chauffeurs to carry guns. Pickfair, home of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, is guarded day and night. Gloria Swanson has two guards. One is on duty at her home and the other is with her two children wherever they go. Harold Lloyd has two or three watchmen and Jack Warner one, to name a few who employ them.

If a star should be kidnaped during the making of a picture it would fle up production and bring a huge loss to the company. This is one reason why the studios have their own police. These officers recently formed an organization to exchange information.

SHAD HODGIN IS CALLED BY DEATH

Republican Candidate for Governor Nomination Last Summer.

TWIN FALLS, Jan. 8. (AP)—Shad L. Hodgin, former mayor of Twin Falls and prominently mentioned last year as a republican possibility for the nomination for governor, died suddenly in his law offices here this afternoon.

Hodgin, long prominent in republican activities in south Idaho, shifted his support to W. D. Gillis, a republican candidate for the nomination who was defeated by John McMurray.

A native of Missouri he came to Idaho as a youth, served as a deputy sheriff in Ada county during the Moyer-Haywood-Pettibone trial, involving the assassination of Governor Steunenberg in 1906, and came to Twin Falls from Boise in 1918. In 1920 he was chairman of the party's central committee and two years later was elected mayor.

His widow and one son, J. Lawrence, a member of the lower house of the state legislature, survive him.

Gloom in Legislature.

BOISE, Jan. 8. (AP)—The death of Shad Hodgin in Twin Falls today cast gloom over the legislature, many of the members of which knew him personally.

He was brought into the limelight last summer when he became a candidate for the republican nomination for governor and withdrew.

A son, Lawrence, representing Twin Falls county in the legislature, was advised this afternoon of his father's illness, but with preparations nearly complete to leave, word of his death came.

With this announcement the entire Twin Falls delegation was excused and left for Twin Falls.

EXPERT DEVELOPS NEW TAX SYSTEM

Would Charge for Privilege of Doing Business in Idaho.

BOISE, Jan. 8. (AP)—A new tax system developed through studies by Roy Dodge, Seattle tax expert, was being discussed here today as a possible solution for Idaho's tax problem.

Dodge, who has been employed by local banks while making his taxation study, suggested a tax which in effect would be a charge for the privilege of doing business in Idaho.

The proposal, made entirely unofficial, immediately started talk of his appointment to the tax commission requested by Governor C. Ben Ross in his message to the legislature.

Roughly, the proposal was to tax business enterprises or business within this state only. An objection to this that it would tend to drive business to other states was met by Dodge with the explanation the tax would be graduated according to the proportion of the company's entire valuation.

This, he contended, would have a direct tendency to encourage business men to increase the proportion of their investment in Idaho rather than to drive them out.

Objection to Dodge serving on the commission was raised on the ground it would appear he would be in effect an agent of banks for his most recent work has been under the direction of banking institutions.

SENATE FOOD AMENDMENT STOPS HOUSE

$15,000,000 Item Deadlocks Lower Chamber for Third Day; Little Hope for Break.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—For the third successive day the house remained deadlocked today over the senate's $15,000,000 food loan amendment to the drought relief appropriation bill with little hope for an early break in sight.

Anxiety over the outcome became evident in other republican and democratic ranks as telegrams poured in to senators and representatives telling of the plight of the hungry and destitute in the drought areas.

Administration followers nevertheless held their positions against appropriating funds for food under the seed, feed and fertilizer loan act. The democratic forces, joined by Representative LaGuardia (Rep., N. Y.) demanded a vote on the senate provision.

LaGuardia has successfully resisted efforts to send the measure to conference unless the republican and democratic forces agree that the food provision applies to both urban and rural districts.

He introduced a resolution today to the appropriation of $30,000,000 to be turned over to the Red Cross to feed the unemployed throughout the country.

Similarly a measure to appropriate $15,000,000 was introduced by Representative Fish (Rep., N. Y.) who also submitted a resolution to have the farm board turn wheat in its possession to the Red Cross.

Objecting, for the third time, to a move by Chairman Wood of the house appropriations committee to send the drought measure to conference LaGuardia said it would be "impossible to explain to the American people why food should be distributed to certain sections of the country utterly disregarding the needs in other sections, particularly in the cities."

Wood said he was opposed to the food provision for any section of the country as a matter of principle.

Kansas Legislator Makes Plans for State 'Bunkhouse'

TOPEKA, Kan. Jan. 8. (AP)—A resolution calling for construction of a log cabin dormitory on the state house grounds to provide living quarters for members of the legislature in keeping with their $3 a day "generous allowance" has been prepared for introduction in the house of representatives.

Representative Caldwell Davis, democrat of Bourbon county, a brother of Jonathan M. Davis, former governor, has caused the resolution to be prepared.

Under the resolution the cabin would be provided with wooden bunks and supplied with fresh, clean straw twice weekly during the sessions of the legislature and tallow candles which could be burned until 9 p. m.

In five elections the voters have rejected amendments calling for increases in the pay of the Kansas lawmakers who meet in regular biennial session next Tuesday.

BURN SUGAR TO INJURE MACHADO

HAVANA, Jan. 8. (AP)—Fulfillment of threats to embarass the administration of President Machado was seen here today in published reports of the mysterious burning of 7,500,000 pounds of standing sugar cane in Matazas and Pinar del Rio provinces.

The Havana Post said that 3,500,000 pounds of standing cane on the plantations of A. M. Casanova, member of the Chadbourne-Gutllerrez committee was destroyed by fire yesterday.

The Day In Washington

(By the Associated Press.)

House passed Stobbs bill to modify Jones five and ten law.

Representative LaGuardia proposed $30,000,000 appropriation for Red Cross to feed unemployed and drought stricken as house deals with action on drought bill.

Representative Fish introduced resolution to have farm board turn its wheat to Red Cross for relief.

Law enforcement commission declined to delay presentation of its prohibition report to President Hoover.

Senate debated whether to reconsider confirmation of three federal power commissioners.

Senator McNary, assistant republican leader, planned to ask night sessions to expedite legislation.

NEWARK AIRPORT IS WORLD'S GREATEST

Extensive Volume of Business Carried on There Last Year.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 8. (AP)—A patch of waste land in which coarse swamp grass waved a little more than three years ago has become the greatest airport in the world, far surpassing in business volume the longer established fields of LeBourget, Tempelehfer and Croydon. The metropolitan airport of Newark last year was the central point of transportation of more than 1,000,000 pounds of mail and 34,058 passengers.

The airport was conceived in July, 1927, a few weeks after the Paris flight of Charles A. Lindbergh awakened the municipalities to the need of airports. The city owned or later acquired some 2000 acres of swampland. Dredgings from the bay were used to fill in 210 acres of the swamp which extended downward 11 feet below sea level.

The work cost approximately $4,000,000 and another $2,000,000 was spent for drainage and administration buildings.

The state began a $30,000,000 elevated highway, soon to be completed, which will cut to 12 minutes the present 20 to 30 minutes trip from the airport to the heart of New York city by way of the Holland tunnel.

HOOVER LOOKS INTO AMERICA'S FUTURE

Says New Generation in Sight for Country; May Eradicate Crime.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—President Hoover believes that 10 years hence a new generation of Americans will begin to arise endowed with the mental, moral and physical health necessary to cope with complexities of life among the marvels of science.

The president told a writer for Cosmopolitan magazine:

"Only children of a new generation — a new America—can stand against this future world. . . .

"One of the biggest of all problems is to drive in this idea of the necessity of properly born, trained, educated and healthy, moral children to the voters and officials of America. This child health conference was a start —but only that we must keep it alive and burning. . . .

Need Conferences.

"We must follow this national conference with a series of state conferences, then group and finally in individual town and city conferences and the 'charter for children' must be drawn into the activities of government and social institutions.

"Think what this new generation built upon that constitution will mean to the single problem of the young criminal. The present rate of criminal increase is disheartening beyond measure. . . .

"This new generation of children, healthy, trained and mentally inspired, would go a long way toward solving all this. Most of our native criminal classes are products of the city slums. If the character and health of the children were watched and nurtured a criminal type would not develop. It would be difficult to overestimate what the single item of adequate playground facilities would mean in the bringing up of normal city children."

M'KELVIE ADVOCATES CONTROL OF MARKET

Says Farmers Must Produce Only Enough for Demand to Profit.

IDAHO FALLS, Jan. 8. (AP)—Organizing American farmers to a point where they won and controlled their marketing systems and educating them to the fact that they should produce only the quanty of commodities that they can sell at a profit are two of the outstanding jobs confronting the federal farm board, Samuel R. McKelvie, wheat member of the board, told a meeting of wheat growers here today.

He said the board wants to help the farmers and believes organization of cooperative marketing agencies for grains and other commodities may bring greater profits to the growers.

The farm board executives said it was a big job preventing and controlling a surplus and it was hard to show farmers they should only grow as much wheat or potatoes as they can sell at a profit. He declared that if the growers continue to produce as much as they please then they must accept whatever price than can get.

REACH AGREEMENT IN SUGAR PROBLEM

BERLIN, Jan. 8. (AP)—Thomas L. Chadbourne, of the Cuban-American sugar delegation today announced that he had negotiated an agreement by which the German sugar interests will participate in a world pact for control of sugar production.

The German delegation, it was learned, agreed to accept a quota permitting exportation of 350,000 tons in the fiscal year 1931-32, and 300,000 tons each in 1932-33, and the two following years.

EXPECTANTLY AWAIT PROHIBITION REPORT

Republicans Believe Extra Session Will Follow Presentation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—The prohibition report of President Hoover's law enforcement commission was awaited tonight with more expectancy than ever, in view of a fruitless effort by some republican leaders to head it off.

Seeking to avoid an extra session they went direct to commission headquarters in an effort to sidetrack the rush of oratory expected to follow They were informed, however, that the report was virtually ready for delivery and would be sent as planned.

In the house, meanwhile, final approval was given to the Stobbs bill to modify the Jones five and ten law, a measure which grew out of the commission's suggestions. It now goes to the president.

At the same time Attorney General Mitchell and Prohibition Director Woodcock were discounting the effect of the elimination for the deficiency appropriation, of the $10,000 provision for prohibition education. The sum was stricken out yesterday by the house.

"Continue As Usual."

The prohibition bureau still has left from its last appropriation $22,000 for this purpose and has spent but $18,000 to this end since last July. Woodcock said his force would continue work as usual on the five monographs on prohibition now being prepared.

Woodcock said he did "not know how effective these pamphlets are," but he felt the idea of disseminating such information was proper.

Eight of the commissioners were at their desks today. A majority of them were occupied more with other phases of the investigation into crime than with prohibition.

The Jones law modification, which the house acted today, would define causes of violators under the stringent five and 10 statute. If approved by the president it would set up a category of offenses involving less than one gallon of liquor and provide a maximum penalty of $500 fine or six months in prison for a first offense rather than the five year and $10,000 penalty.

RAILROAD WORKER TAKES OWN LIFE

SPOKANE, Jan. 8. (AP)—Police said tonight that Claude F. Fenstermacher, 48, found shot through the head but still alive by fellow workers in a railroad tool room, probably killed himself today.

Fenstermacher died in a hospital eight hours after the shooting. First reports were that he had been the victim of an assault but discovery of notes addressed to his wife and a small calibre pistol near him contributed to a suicide theory. Mrs. Fenstermacher is in northern Alberta, Canada, and can "come out" only by dogsled.

In searching for a motive police recalled that he was to have been arraigned Monday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor girl. Contents of the note to his wife were not mdae public.

CLAIM BROTHERS CONFESSES CRIME

CHICAGO, Jan. 8. (AP)—Although no direct comment was forthcoming from those in charge of the investigation, a report that Leo Brothers had confessed to the slaying of Jake Lingle persisted in newspaper circles tonight.

The Herald and Examiner said the report had eminated from the headquarters of the board of strategy where reporters were summoned last night to view the St. Louis gunman who is said to have shot down the Tribune reporter last June 9.

Chief Investigator Patrick Roche and his principal aides were absent from headquarters all day and those who remained were not authorized to talk.

FEWER FORDS MADE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. (AP)—World output of Ford cars and trucks totaled 1,500,010 units last year, of which 45,582 were produced in December. During 1929 production totaled 1,948,429 units.

DRIVE CATTLE.

MELBOURNE, Australia, (AP)—One of the greatest cattle driving journeys that Australia has ever known is on. More than 60,000 head of cattle, comprising prime selections from the great herds of northern Australia, are being driven south.

TERMS HOOVER "FAILURE" AS NATION'S HEAD

Shouse Predicts That Democrats May Organize Both Houses of Congress This Year.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 8. (AP)—Jouett Shouse, chairman of the democratic national executive committee, tonight called Herbert Hoover "a failure as president" and said it was quite possible "we democrats shall have to organize both houses of congress this year."

The democratic leader called on his party to find a successful method of dealing with commercial disturbances. He pointed to the federal reserve act in the field of finance as an example.

"It is doubtful," Shouse said, addressing a Missouri Jackson day banquet, "if any administration since the government was inaugurated has compassed in two years so little in constructive accomplishment as has this administration."

Calls Situation "Hoover Panic."

Terming the present economic situation the "Hoover panic," he said the crash would have not been so great, the misery not so long continued had Mr. Hoover not . . . lulled the country into a false sense of security and encouraged people to ignore the danger signals that are so apparent in retrospect.

"In all the confusion and indecision of the situation," the speaker went on, "there has been only one bright spot.

"The federal reserve bank system has been of incalculable value in preserving the country from innumerable bank and business failures such as marked every industrial depression previous to the adoption of this great financial system, a system conceived by the Woodrow Wilson administration and enacted into law in the face of opposition of republican senators and representatives. Even President Hoover has been forced to pay tribute to the solidity and efficiency of this great agency without which the Hoover panic would have surpassed in wretchedness any similar period in the nation's history.

Can Rise to Occasion Again.

"If democratic genius was able to produce this magnificient remedy for fiscal confusion why should it be deemed beyond our capacity to find an equally successful method of dealing with commercial disturbance," he asked.

"Nobody can forecast the events of the next year. It is quite among the possibilities that we democrats shall have to organize both houses of congress. Whether that occurs our party, as a sole coherent group, will dominate and direct the legislation. Referring to the democratic gains in the last general election Shouse predicted "we will take over the government two years from now and we will retain it as long as we deserve to."

STOBBS' BILL IS PASSED BY CONGRESS

Seek to Modify Stringent Jones "Five and Ten" Prohi Law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—Congress passed the Stobbs bill to modify the Jones "5 and 10" dry law today and that was about the sum total of agreement on Capitol hill.

The $15,000,000 loan for human food was virtually in the same position that it occupied yesterday. The senate spent most of its time arguing over its proposed reconsideration of Commissioners Smith, Garsaud and Draper of the power commission.

Concerned with the small-like progress of legislation in the senate the assistant republican leader, McNary of Oregon, informed his colleagues he was prepared to ask for night sessions three days a week beginning Monday.

More Muscle Shoals.

Muscle Shoals is out of conference but its troubles are not yet over. It may pass the house but even then it faces the possibility of a presidential veto.

Congress, feeling it has enough trouble on its hands, has made an effort to delay submission of the much-discussed prohibition report. The attempt failed.

Frank B. Kellogg, former senator and secretary of state, went to the capitol to see old friends and was informed by foes of the American adherence to the world court that they had enough votes to keep the United States from ratifying the protocol. Kellogg, co-author of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact, is a justice of the court and an advocate of adherence.

Bar Silver Drops To All-Time Low

White Metal Price Reduced to 28¾ Cents an Ounce; Lead and Copper Are Also on the Decline.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9. (AP)—Bar silver dropped 1¼ cents to a new historical low in New York today suffering one of the sharpest breaks in the decline which has carried the metal to several successive record lows in recent months.

The new quotation of 28¾ cents an ounce appeared hours after the price is usually posted. Dealers explained that weakness in London had such an unsettling effect that buyers held off and there was a striking lack of business.

Silver has dropped steadily from 65 cents an ounce in 1926. Compared with today's decline of 1¼ cents another drop of one cent was recorded since the first of the year. Although looked on in the trade as rather severe the records disclosed that much sharper declines have been suffered, notably a drop of 2¼ cents in 1921.

Shading of copper and lead prices coupled with weakness of silver gave non-ferrous metal markets an easier tone today.

A reduction of .10 of a cent to 4.75 cents a pound in lead was announced by the American Smelting and Refining company. The same company yesterday cut lead 15 points making the reduction for the two days one-fourth of a cent.

One customs smelter was said to be willing to sell copper at 10¼ cents, off one-fourth cent but no particular significance could be assigned to such a step since the largest producers are holding at 10½. The market has turned dull with foreign sales small.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. (AP)—An indolent and indifferent stock market squeezed higher today thanks largely to a last minute rally in the steels and utilities. The turnover was the smallest since December 24 for neither the intermittent declines or advances attracted much of a following. Sales totaled 1,706,093 shares.

Small early recessions were recovered around noon when the results of the Berlin sugar conference were announced. The agreement, of course, made shorts in the sugar issues cover quickly and gains of one to seven points, mostly in the preferred members, ensued but the rest of the market did little more than pick up its forenoon losses and trading lapsed into the dullest in weeks. In the final 15 minutes professional traders gave the list its best flip of the day with small net gains general.

RELIEF WORK IS DONE BY HECLA

Work on the installation of a generator at the Black Bear fraction tunnel at Black Bear was completed Thursday. Work on the hook-up of the generator and a compliment-tary water wheel has been under way for some time as an unemployment relief measure. The generator will be used as a ventilation unit for the fraction tunnel workings.

It was learned Thursday that the Hecla Mining company has recently completed an eight-inch pipe line from the Black Bear fraction tunnel to the Hecla mill at Gem to carry clean water to the mill. Six men were employed for two weeks on the work, which was undertaken to keep the Hecla surface men employed.

"Everything possible is being done to alleviate the silver situation. This is a matter which will take the cooperation of foreign countries as well as the continued effort on the part of the United States."

LEVY ASSESSMENT.

An assessment of three mills per share was levied on the outstanding capital stock of the Coeur d'Alene Mining and Smelting company at a recent meeting, it was learned Thursday.

Anaconda at 50 Per Cent Capacity

Officials of Company Make Statements Given Inventory of Past Year's Production.

After announcing that the regular quarterly dividend of 62½c. a share had been declared on the common stock, John D. Ryan and Cornelius F. Kelley, chairman and president respectively of the Anaconda Copper Mining company, issued a joint statement to the company's stockholders, maintaining that an analysis of the situation demonstrates the basic soundness of the copper industry, says Metal and Mineral Markets.

The statement, in part, follows:

"Anaconda and its subsidiaries constitute the largest integrated unit in the world engaged in the mining, smelting, refining, manufacturing, and distribution of non-ferrous metals and their fabricated products. Its known copper ore reserves, developed and equipped, insure a life for the company, upon the scale of its operations in 1929, of more than 50 years, while its facilities in the United States and Canada for the manufacture of copper, brass, and wire products furnish adequate outlets for its entire copper production.

Less Than 50 Per Cent.

"The current production from the mines of the company and its subsidiaries, the Chile Copper company, Andes Copper Mining company, and Greene Cananea Copper company, which have never been operated to capacity output, is now less than 50 per cent of their respective normal capacity.

"While stocks of copper have materially increased during the year, your company has sold in refined or manufactured form its production and purchases made during the same period.

"It is believed that the Anaconda company owns the lowest-cost units in the industry. The actual operating cost of producing electrolytic copper for October, the latest month for which detailed figures are obtainable, before depreciation, interest, and taxes, was 7.18c. a pound, and after all charges, including depreciation, taxes, and interest, was 8.63c. a pound.

Big Investment.

"As of November 30, Anaconda had invested in buildings, machinery, and equipment, excluding all real estate, mines and forest lands, $263,706,845, against which depreciation of $91,-181,251 had been charged. As of the same date the current assets of the company totaled $138,030,544, and current liabilities, including all accrued items of interest, taxes, wages, accounts, bills and notes payable, amounted to $67,510,667, leaving net working capital of $70,519,877.

"Of the current assets, finished metals on hand, carried at current market prices or less, total $38,211,-486. Manufactured products, based on metals priced at lower than cost or market, amount to $21,262,357. Metals and manufactured products in process supplies, and other miscellaneous items aggregated $38,257,926. Cash, accounts receivable and securities at present market prices were $40,298,775.

"The above inventory is in excess of normal requirements of the company. Under the conditions which have prevailed the policy of the company has been and will continue to be one of refraining from dumping and sacrificing the products of the company at abnormally low prices. Bills payable which have been incurred by following this policy should be self-liquidating upon any improvement in business."

MORE GLOOM FOR INGE.

LONDON. (AP)—Dr. Inge, the "gloomy dean" of St. Paul's told banquet guests recently that he had received an anonymous letter saying: "I am praying for your death. I have been very successful in two other instances."

Reduce Lead Price 10 Cents to $4.75

Making its third decline since Monday the price of lead was reduced 10 cents a hundredweight, from $4.85 to $4.75, in New York Thursday by the American Smelting and Refining company. Lead was selling at $5.10 per hundredweight last week but Monday the price was reduced ten cents to five cents a pound and Wednesday a cut of 15 cents per hundredweight was announced. The present price is less than 22 cents higher than the average price of the metal in 1921.

FIRE DESTROYS MINE BUILDINGS AT JACK WAITE

The heating plant and warehouse adjoining the old mill at the Jack Waite were destroyed by fire during the holidays, according to word received here Wednesday. The fire was confined to the heating plant and the warehouse and the new mill and other portions of the mining plant were not damaged.

The fire started in the heating plant when a fireman stoked the furnace, closed the drafts and left the boiler room temporarily. Gasses formed in the firebox from the fresh fuel and the combustion that resulted forced the firebox door open and allowed the flames to catch the engine room afire.

The loss is as yet undetermined but is fully covered by insurance. The heating plant was immediately rebuilt.

Adjustor W. C. Webster from Spokane is at present engaged on the adjustment of the loss.

Certain districts of northern Mexico have been closed to game hunters from the United States and other foreign countries for one year.

INVENTOR OUT TO PROVE ROCKET PLANES FEASIBLE

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—Maurice Poirier, inventor, has no idea of flying to Mars, but he is undertaking experiments which he is confident will prove rocket airplanes practicable.

Poirier has built a model plane with a wing spread of ten feet which he declares already has done all he expected of it in private tests.

Early in January he will take the miniature rocket plane to one of the dry lakes on the desert east of here for a public test. He will be aided by his engineer, Frank Wallace, an inventor and designer. The inventor indicated that the plane might go 500 miles an hour.

P.-T. A. TO MEET.

An address, "Health," by Dr. H. C. Mowery will feature the meeting of the St. Alphonsus Parent-Teachers association in the Academy hall Friday evening at 730 o'clock. There will also be a program by school children.

AID IS REQUESTED.

Mrs. Irving T. Fairweather, investigator for the Associated Charities, announced Thursday that she had received numerous requests for blankets, quilts and children's clothing. Those who can spare such articles are asked to leave them at the city hall.

More than 10,000 have been killed in English mines in the last 10 years.

EMIL JANNINGS IS SEEN IN TALKIE

Famous German Actor in "The Blue Angel," to Show at Grand Friday and Saturday.

A rare treat is in store for audiences at the Grand theatre, Emil Jannings, who achieved premier renown in American-made silent pictures as a character actor, will be seen and heard in his first all-talking picture at the Grand theatre on Friday and Saturday. The picture is "The Blue Angel."

In this English-dialog version of a German-made masterpiece, directed Josef Von Sternberg, the great Jannings is seen as the good and righteous professor in a high school in a German city. He rules the classroom with a power akin to that of an imperial Caesar, and his pupils fear and respect him, for he is an upright God-fearing man, a model of sobriety.

When he learns by chance that several of his pupils have been visiting the "Blue Angel Cafe," he decided to catch them in this forbidden water-front cabaret and thus, on the spot, deliver a reprimand that will prevent them from further wasting their time there. But as fate will have it, the good man becomes confused in the mid activities at the music hall, and instead of finding the youths, he finds the object of their adoration—Marlene Dietrich, a gorgeous creature, the favorite of the cafe.

Beset by a romantic impulse such as he had never in his life before experienced, Jannings becomes enamored of this lovely blonde dancer. She thinks that she loves him. But when the news of the alliance gets to the school the boys ridicule their erstwhile teacher so heartily that the school authorities, seeing Jannings' delinquency of respectability, fire him from his job.

The undoing of a man has begun. The rest of the picture carries Jannings through a series of colorful, if not happy adventures. The climax is one of the most astonishing dramatic moments the talking screen has ever seen.

"The Blue Angel" is dynamic drama. It tears the very fibres of the heart.

VET AUXILIARY TO MEET.

The Ladies Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will meet Friday night at 8 o'clock with Mrs. H. J. Ellingsworth, McKissick apartments. Mrs. Norman Goddard will be the assisting hostess.

FORESTERS BACK OF BLISTER RUST FIGHT

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, MOSCOW, Jan. 8.—The Society of American Foresters is extremely sympathetic toward the blister rust problem of Idaho and the Pacific Northwest, reports Dean F. G. Miller of the University of Idaho school of forestry upon his return from the 30th annual session of the society at Washington, D. C., December 29 to 31. The society, which has a membership of more than 1700 leaders in the forestry profession, regards the blister rust situation in the northwest as particularly serious and, the Idaho dean added, was eager to lend every effort to bring about control.

While in Washington, Dean Miller also attended a blister rust hearing before the director of the budget. At this hearing Idaho's request for increased appropriations for blister rust control was presented by Idaho's congressional delegation, headed by Congressman French. Dean Miller explained the threat of the rust to the future of forestry in Idaho.

One of the interesting angles of the forestry convention was the sentiment that reforestation might be developed as a partial solution of the problem of unemployment, Dean Miller adds. Some of the discussions before the society suggested reforestation as a way money could be applied in a very constructive way.

Dean Miller made two talks before the session, one on industrial forestry practices in Idaho, and the other on disposition of the remaining public domain.

A spirit of optimism over the national forestry program was noticeable at the society sessions, he reported.

EDITOR'S VIEW OF MESSAGE

In commenting on Governor Ross' message the Lewiston Tribune says in part: Governor Ross' first legislative message does not bear the finish—nor the rubbish—of the suave public declaration of the adroit politician and office holder. But what it lacks in maturity of political thought it probably makes up for in straightforward adherence to purpose and decisive declaration.

It is refreshing to find a man in high public office not only shouting economy, but proposing material means whereby it may be achieved. The general spirit of the message is good, revealing a progressive mind which does not travel down the worn political ruts.

Some of Governor Ross' recommendations to the legislature the Tribune disagrees with, and others it does not understand. That is not the thing. The thing is to have in the executive office a citizen of superior character and resolute purpose in whose final judgment the state can rely. We are more and more confident the state, all of it and not mere parts or factions thereof, has such an officer in Mr. Ross and that he is going to give the best there is in him to good public service.

The Capital News is of the opinion that the message contains recommendations for the enactment of legislation beneficial to the people and the state at large. It is tempered with a full realization that, as almost the ultimate minority, politically speaking, in state administrative affairs, he must have the cooperation of the majority.

Some of the recommendations in the message will receive hearty approval, backing and support, not only from the legislature, but the people as a whole. Others will arouse opposition and discussion as to their merit. On the whole the message may be classed as a constructive document. But it could have gone much farther.

The Capital News agrees with Governor Ross that an income tax law should be enacted as one form of relief to the struggling owners of real property, but it would have gone farther and urged upon the legislature consideration of some form of sales or luxury tax. An income tax for Idaho would raise about one and a quarter million dollars, and a retail sales tax would raise approximately one and three-quarter million dollars more. If a retail sales tax is unsatisfactory, a luxury tax would yield about eight hundred thousand dollars to relieve real property taxes in this state.

The Idaho Statesman discussing Governor Ross' message relative to the judiciary says: For many years the Statesman has contended that our supreme court justices and district judges should receive more pay and that higher salaries would attract men of higher caliber. Governor Ross recommends that this be accomplished by cutting down the number of judicial districts in the state and by reducing the number of supreme court justices from five to three. Were this done the state could double the salaries of the judges and still be money ahead. The Statesman is sympathetic to the details of this suggestion if it is shown that three justices can handle the supreme court work. That the judges should be paid more there can be no denying.

Masked Longing

BY HOWARD ROCKEY — A ROMANCE OF RADIO

SYNOPSIS: Aileen Gray wins a star part in a new Broadway show with the help of Jimmy Crane, theatrical press agent who loves her. Her younger sister, Vivienne, an artist's model, is jealous of this sudden rise to fame. At a party given for Aileen by Dwight Channing, artist, Vivienne seeks to draw attention to herself by taking a dare to bathe in the fountain. Aileen, trying to prevent her, is disfigured when she falls through a glass door. Vivienne is faced with the task of supporting her sister, who goes into seclusion wearing a silk mask to conceal her scars. Jimmy persuades Aileen to consent to have her voice tested for making phonograph records. In a speakeasy he sees Vivienne dining with Arnold Kronberg, a movie magnate of unsavory reputation.

Chapter 16

GRIM NEWS

JIMMY guessed the truth—that Kronberg had met Vivienne while she was posing at Channing's studio. The producer, he knew, was a fast worker when a pretty girl caught his fancy.

Seeing Vivienne there riled him. Aileen would be waiting for her at home; no doubt getting dinner ready. Yet the chances were that Kronberg would suggest their ordering here.

Somebody ought to warn the fool to keep away from him. Not that it mattered so Jimmy what Vivienne chose to do—except on Aileen's account. Just the same, he felt that he ought to break this thing up somehow, to hit on some way of making Vivienne realize that a bit in a Kronberg show is always dearly bought.

One of these days Kronberg would make front page in a whale of a juicy mix-up. It might be as well to suggest to Viv that she need not figure in it.

Then Crane had an inspiration. Vivienne had not seen him. Twenty minutes later, he was sitting before the fire in Channing's studio. Channing listened quietly to Jimmy's story. His code forbade his mentioning the scene that had passed between Vivienne and himself. He had been certain that Vivienne would get in touch with Kronberg.

Her motive was perfectly plain, and unless he was much mistaken, there was something more than pique in her having phoned to the producer. She was far too sophisticated not to be thoroughly aware of what she was about.

Channing strongly suspected that her underlying purpose was to make him jealous, though he discounted her sincerity in proposing what she had to him.

She would never have gone through with it if his answer had been different. She had known what his reaction would be.

The trouble was that it peeved her that his only interest in her charms had been from an artist's viewpoint.

Outwardly, at least, Viv was the type that could not exist without being told she was lovely By deliberately holding himself aloof he had offended her.

The real secret was that Vivienne needed a man who would care for her as Crane cared for Aileen. With all of her deep intensity—as yet only partly stirred—her soul cried for the caresses of a man who would be strong enough to shackle her affections.

Perhaps he had been rather brutal in his treatment of Vivienne. Yet his analysis of her character suggested that it was better to let her work out her own salvation. Just now she was the victim of a flood of conflicting desires—not a little desperate at the responsibility that had fallen on her shoulders—through her own thoughtlessness.

"Don't worry," he said to Jimmy. "If Viv's the girl I think she is, Kronberg's wasting time. If she found a man she really loved, she'd go the limit for him. But there won't be any affinity between Vivienne and Kronberg. He's clever and has a thin veneer which goes very well with the sort of girls who are looking for exactly what he has to offer. Viv will resent him the moment the man reveals himself. And he doesn't waste much time. So I rather think this experience will be a good thing for her. She's in a hard position, and she'll have to find herself."

"But Aileen will eat her heart out—while the experiment's going on!"

"No she won't." Channing said. "The very thing that Vivienne imagines she may do will spur Aileen to effort. It will show her the necessity of making herself independent. That's going to help a lot. If you stir up Vivienne, you'll only add fuel to the fire."

"Maybe you're right," said Jimmy. "I guess I'd better get on the job and frame up Aileen's appointment or she may lose her nerve."

"She won't. You mustn't let her. But wait a minute. What you've said suggests another angle. If Aileen's voice has the quality that's needed for recording, it seems to me that she could sing over the radio. Practically all of the microphone stars started making records."

"That's true," said Crane. "But the trouble is she's so sensitive she'd never consent to facing the crowd in a studio."

"I thought you were a publicity man!" Channing smiled through a cloud of smoke.

"That's an angle which makes it worse," Jimmy said hopelessly. "She wants to forget Miss Santa Claus. I think the thing she dreads most is her fear that people will pity her. I don't mean just in the studio, but the whole public, when it reads about who she is."

"Jimmy you're hopeless!" Channing laughed. "We will forget Miss Santa Claus—and create a mystery star. I'll phone to Colonel Sherwood. He's the man to talk to at the U.B.C. She can have her audition with no one in the studio but the control-board men. We'll turn this infernal mask of hers into a real advantage."

"I'm afraid she'd never stand for that. You mean masked tenor stuff?"

"With a brand new twist that'll make a hit with some advertising sponsor. Now suppose a young woman swathed in furs, steps off an ocean liner—wearing a porcelain mask. Will the ship-news reporters wonder who she is? I'll bet they don't even trouble to ask her for her press agent's name. A story is a story. Then suppose she goes to the Ambassador, states that she's here incognita, and retires to her private suite. What would you say to that?"

"I'll say the idea's a pippin—except that everything centers on a natural curiosity to get a peep at her features. And of course, she can't unveil."

"We'll make it a part of the contract that her true identity is not to be revealed," Channing said. "There'll be something psychological in the fact that this mask is intriguing. I'll model it for it myself. Without even the faintest resemblance to Aileen's own features. A fascinating, haunting face that'll be as famous in a month as the Mona Lisa. People may stare and wonder, but no one will have an idea there are scars underneath the surface. That'll make all the difference in her attitude toward it."

"I believe you're right," Jimmy agreed. "But it'll cost some coin."

"Not much," Channing figured "The Mask will be my part of it. It's easy to smuggle her on board when the ship comes in. No one will be the wiser. Then she can come down the gang-plank surrounded by her retinue while the cameras click."

"You're wasting your time as an artist!" cried Jimmy. "It's mighty fine of you to help me out like this."

"Glad to," Channing answered. "I feel responsible—having made that statue—and her accident happened here. Why not have dinner with me?"

Jimmy wondered whether this porcelain mask that Channing had proposed, would really make such a difference in Aileen's mental viewpoint. It was certainly worth trying.

The telephone began to ring and Channing called out from his bedroom. "Crane, would you mind answering that? I'll be there in a moment."

Jimmy lifted the receiver and absently said "Hello!" A woman's voice was speaking, hardly above a whisper, a tremulous note in her tone "Is that you, Dwight?" came the question.

"Just a second," Crane answered. Then, before he could say anything more, he heard his own name.

"Jimmy! Jimmy, is that you? Do you know who's speaking?"

He did. It was Vivienne "What is it? Anything I can do?"

"Oh, Jimmy—listen—and hurry! I'm in Arnold Kronberg's office. You know where it is? Jimmy, come over as quick as you can. I—I think—he's dead."

SOUTH DIVISION CONFERENCE OPENS

Initial Games of Season Slated For This Week-End; Wallace-Kellogg Play Tonight at Kellogg; Mullan Barnstorming.

With the majority of teams rapidly rounding into midseason form following numerous practice encounters, the southern division, Panhandle conference, basketball season will be opened this week-end. Seven quintets will see action.

Headlining the week's hoop dish for Shoshone county fans will be the traditional Wallace-Kellogg contest on the Smelter city court Friday night. Burke high's Bobcats will entertain Kingston Friday night, while the Mullan Tigers journey to Harrison to meet the strong Lakesiders.

Saturday Kingston will play ball on the Y. M. C. A. court at Kellogg against the Wildcats, and Mullan will travel from Harrison to St. Maries to engage the Lumberjacks on their home maples.

Dopesters have been active during the last week and the majority seem to put it like this:

Expect Close Game.

The Kellogg-Wallace tilt will likely be anybody's game, although the Wildcats are conceded a slight edge as the result of having five lettermen on the roster, compared with only three for Mel Ingram's proteges. The Miners displayed an air tight defense against Gonzaga but their offense was weak and upon their ability to "click" in the pinches probably will hinge a victory or defeat.

Harrison, by virtue of holding the North Idaho champion Coeur d'Alene team to 20 to 17 count on the Viking floor last week, is favored to tip over the Morning city casaba heavers, although Mullan is rated as one of the strongest teams in the conference, with seven lettermen back.

Pick Burke to Win.

Burke is picked to defeat Kingston, although little is known of the comparative strength of the two quintets. The Cliffdwellers from the Canyon city have virtually the same team that bore their colors last year and under the tutelage of Coach Malcolm, former Dakota star, are expected to round into a formidable aggregation.

Kellogg has already won two games from Kingston in pre-conference encounters and should repeat Saturday, despite the fact that the game will follow the Wallace-Kellogg game Friday.

Mullan is expected to down St. Maries Saturday night, although little has been heard from the Lumberjacks this year. The Mullan hoopsters took the long end of the scores from the rivermen last year.

ELECT DOYLE WALLACE RIFLE CLUB PRESIDENT

Members of the Wallace Rifle club elected officers and made plans for the 1931 season at a meeting in the Day building here Thursday night.

William Doyle, well-known Wallace sportsman, was named president; Earl Smith, vice president; A. E. Frank, secretary; W. B. Hetfeld, treasurer, and Mike Kinsella, range officer. The officers will also serve as directors.

It was decided that "postal" matches with the Fort Wright rifle team would be held as in previous seasons and the club members also voted to enter National Rifle association competition.

A new rifle range was recently erected in Frank's Auto Repair shop, where the trigger-squeezers will practice during the winter. The outdoor range of the club is located a short distance west of Osburn, near the Osburn landing field.

A handicap rifle contest will be held on the indoor range next Tuesday evening, with a big trophy to be awarded the winner.

GOOD OUTLOOK FOR W. S. C.

Jack Friel, Coach, Not Entirely Satisfied With Pre-Season Hoop Showing, However.

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE, PULLMAN, Jan. 8.—Although the Washington State basketball team only dropped one pre-season game, Jack Friel, coach, is not entirely satisfied with the performance of his team. A heavy helping of practice sessions is being handed out in preparation for the Oregon State games Friday and Saturday.

During the early season the Cougars won from Whitman, the Sparklers of Spokane, Ellensburg Normal and the Lewiston Normal. The Gonzaga team nipped one tilt of a two-game series while the Ellensburg five gave the Staters a bad scare.

Seven lettermen form the nucleus of Friel's squad. Pesco and Van Tuyl have been handling the guard jobs with McLarney and Holsten as forwards. Gordon, an ex-frosher, has been playing center hard pushed by Endslow. Wills, Cross and Graham have seen action in the early games and will no doubt have an opportunity to prove their worth in fast company.

Van Tuyl Hurt.

A leg injury to Van Tuyl may keep him out of the Oregon State game. Cross, a sophomore, will take his place in all probability. Pesco will draw the other job berth. McLarney and Holsten will no doubt start at forward positions. The choice at centers is uncertain as both Gordon and Endslow will be in condition for the game. Wills, another sophomore, will play before the Oregon State series is over providing he can shake his cold.

Though hesitant in predicting that the Washington State team will be a winner Friel feels confident that his team will win a share of games. If early season games are a criterion the Cougars should be close to the top heap. The first year Friel took the helm the Staters climbed to third place in the northwest division of the coast conference. Last year his team made another step(reaching second position.

NO CAPTAIN.

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—North Carolina State college's basketball team will have no captain this year. That is—no season captain. A game captain will be elected at the beginning of each contest. The five lettermen on the squad are entitled to serve as captain for a game.

LEWISTON LOSES.

LEWISTON, Jan. 8. (AP)—Walla Walla high school basketball team defeated Lewiston, 45 to 33, here tonight.

ARREST SCIUCHETTI.

Sam Sciuchetti, Kellogg, arrested Thursday afternoon in Kellogg on an open charge by Chief of Police Fritz Linger and Deputy Sheriff Horace Trask, was lodged in the county jail Thursday evening.

AUTO SKIDS OFF ROAD.

An automobile which skidded and left the Wallace-Mullan highway near the Golconda mill sometime Tuesday night was still unattended Thursday. It was apparently undamaged.

MOST ARRESTED MAN DIES.

TACOMA, Jan. 8. (AP)—The most arrested man in Tacoma, Jimmy Ross, 52, who had been in jail 117 times in 16 years, died from effects of liquor, Thursday morning.

BALL PLAYERS ARE HOOP STARS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) —While Babe Ruth hunts and other New York Yankees plan winter baseball and whoop-ned in warmer climes, Ben Chapman and Dewey (Sammy) Byrd, second baseman and outfielder of the club, dribble a basketball during the off-season.

Chapman and Byrd are members of the Birmingham Reds, independent basketball team.

"Big Ben," who played in all but a few games for the Yankees last year at third base, or the keystone, is a center and coach of the Reds, a team made up of former southern college or high school stars. Both he and Byrd are Birmingham products.

Byrd, who sometimes hits for Babe Ruth when the Bambino is unable to fill his post in the New York outfield, is a guard. While baseball is his best game, he is no mean dribbler and also handles a golf ball creditably. He beat Babe Ruth last year for the Yankee golf championship.

While Byrd was a member of the Simpson high school cage team that placed in the semi-finals of the national prep tournament in 1923, Chapman was making basketball history at Phillips high school and later played with the Birmingham athletic club.

Both stepped from the high school door to professional baseball. Ben, who is only 21 years old, signed with the Yankees and was farmed out for two years. Last year he was called back to the team and played regularly at third until moved over to second.

'PRO' FOOTBALL CLEANER.

MILLER, S. D. (AP)—Professional football is "faster, harder, smarter and cleaner" than college football, according to Wm. Lundeman, former S. D. State college star who played this season with the Green Bay Packers. "There is no piling in a professional game," he said.

CARDIFF, Wales, Jan. 8. (AP)—In the little gray towns of the south Wales coal district the pinch of hunger already has been felt in consequence of the mine strike which began on New Year's day, men and women looked forward today to prospects of an early settlement with the mine owners.

Union officers have announced that owners and union spokesmen will meet Friday in London, both sides ready for any sort of compromise which will send 140,000 idle miners back to work.

LINDBERGH COLLECTION TOTALS 1943 TROPHIES

The first official inventory of the collection has been completed by Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, curator of the Missouri Historical society, who found that pictures, poems and music formed the most numerous classification. Books and games ranked high in the list, with nearly 200 items. There were no less than 118 medals.

DISTINGUISHED POLITICAL LINEAGE HERITAGE OF GIRL

CHICAGO. (AP)—Comely Suzette Morton, of this season's class of Chicago debutantes, is of distinguished political lineage.

One great-grandfather was a cabinet officer and another a famous Chicago mayor.

Suzette, 18, made her debut just 20 years after her mother was presented to society, and many in attendance also witnessed the other event two decades ago.

J. Sterling Morton, her paternal great-grandfather, was secretary of agriculture in President Cleveland's cabinet. He also was first secretary of the Nebraska territory, and the founder of Arbor day.

Carter H. Harrison, Sr., one of the city's most noted mayors, is Miss Morton's maternal great-grandfather, and Carter H. Harrison Jr., also a former mayor, is her grandfather.

Suzette has brown hair and blue eyes. She now attends Vassar.

Ritualistic Contest Tentatively Set for January 21 in Coeur d'Alene; Committee Named.

Plans for the ladies night entertainment January 22, announcement of the ritualistic contest to be held in Coeur d'Alene, probably January 21, and the appointment of a lapsation committee were the principal items of business brought to the attention of the Elks at their regular meeting in the temple Thursday night.

U. S. Buys Palace, Count's Old Home, As Berlin Embassy

BERLIN. (AP)—Old Count Bluecher III probably would chuckle in his grave from sheer delight if he knew the United States had purchased for $2,000,000 his ancestral town-house on Unter den Linden, for housing its embassy and consulate.

The gruff old nobleman brought many a malediction upon himself in the days when Wilhelm reigned by his open admiration for the Anglo-Saxon race.

When he established himself permanently in England, he branded himself as a sinner beyond redemption in the eyes of his nationalistic compatriots, for he was a direct descendant of a line of aristocrats that called the Marches of Brandenburg their home since 1242.

Count Bluecher scandalized Germany further in 1888, when he sued Berlin for $4000 because the city erected reviewing stands which shut out the view from the windows of Palais Bluecher of the funeral procession of Emperor Wilhelm I. He lost that case.

Palais Bluecher, situated at the west end of Unter den Linden, has for neighbors such edifices as the Academy of Art, the presidential palace and the French embassy.

SEEKS BROTHER.

Mrs. J. D. Collins, of Amarillo, Texas, is seeking word of her brother, H. W. Fitcher, who is believed to be in the Coeur d'Alene district, according to word received by the Press-Times.

Sport Slants

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

"The spectator wants to see more offense in football because he likes scoring; the coach wants to see more offense because he is a rotten offensive coach when his team is held inside the opponent's five-yard line," writes Frank J. Murray, Marquette university coach.

Murray advocates doubling the depth of the end zone, making it 20 yards behind each goal line, "to keep the defensive men back and make the running game stronger; or if the backs come up too close," to give the pass a better chance of producing a touchdown.

All of which prompts Parke H. Davis, football's veteran historian and statistician, to trace the reasons for making the present dimensions of the gridiron.

"When Columbia, Harvard, Princeton and Yale, November 26, 1876, adopted the Rugby Union Code the field was 140 yards long and 70 yards wide," writes Davis. "At the Intercollegiate conventions of October 9, 1878 and October 4, 1879, Walter Camp, Yale's representative, advocated reducing the size of the field to an area 400 feet long and 200 feet wide. These proposals were rejected by both conventions.

"In the convention of October 12, 1880, Walter Camp made a motion to reduce the number of players upon a side from the Rugby number, 15, to the Eton number of 11. This motion was adopted. Mr. Camp thereupon moved to reduce the size of the field because 11 men were unable to cover the great size of the Rugby Union field. The convention after prolonged debate reduced the field to an area 110 yards long and 53 1-3 yards wide.

"The collegians who sat in that old time convention were William H. Manning and T. C. Thatcher of Harvard; Francis Loney and Edward C. Peace of Princeton; and Walter Camp, Robert W. Watson and W. B. Hill of Yale.

"These dimensions remained for 32 years. During these years the space behind the goal lines was in the field of play and there was no limitation upon it. Consequently players chased one another for yards behind the line, and even jumped fences and went after the ball in the grand stands.

"In 1912 various colleges were contemplating erecting stadia of concrete. They appealed to the rules committee to limit this space behind the goal line so as to fit inside running tracks and to be uniform behind each goal line. There also was before the committee at that time the obligation to limit the space behind the goal lines on account of the reception of forward passes therein so that the defense would know precisely what they had to cover.

"Whereupon the rules committee at its March session in this year, 1912, laid off the field as it now exists, shortening the running field from 110 to 100 yards and creating behind each goal line a forward pass zone 10 yards in depth."

POLICE STUMBLE ONTO TRICK 'BAR'

CANTON, Ohio, Jan. 8. (AP)—"What, no liquor?" exclaimed Captain Ira Manderbach of the police dry squad after exhausting his repertoire of possible caches of liquor he suspected to be in a house here today.

Prepared to give up he snapped a light out and the owner sighed. Then he switched it on again. Next out came the bulb, then a small screw and something trickled down over his head. Off came the socket, revealing a fine copper tube leading to another room and back of a tile wall.

The sledge crew then went into action and come on a 50 gallon cask which the police said contained 15 gallons of liquor.

Nick Gionniana was arrested.

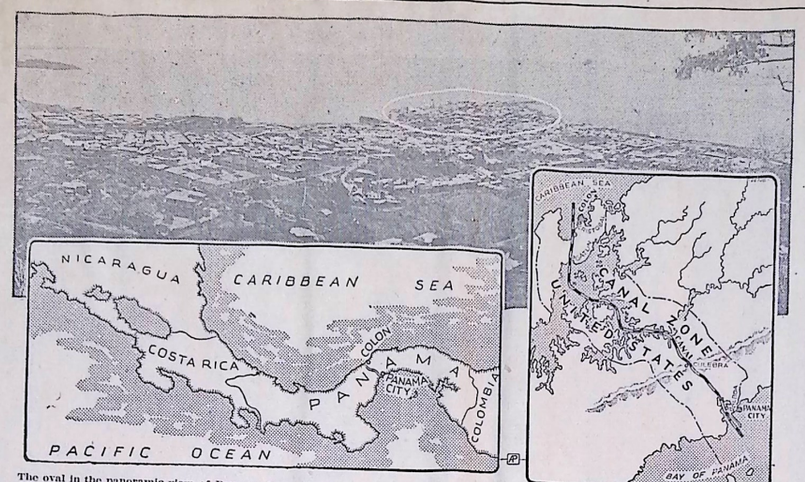
Night Street Marchers Forecast Revolt in Panama for Months



The oval in the panoramic view of Panama City contains the general section in which revolutionary activities occurred. The map at the left shows Panama in its position between Central and South America; that at the right shows Panama City in relation to the Canal Zone.

PANAMA CITY, R. P. (AP)—Late one night three months ago a limousine, bearing a group of Amreicans back to their hotel from a day's motoring, swung around a corner onto a dark street near Panama City's sea wall and all but ran down a group of young men, marching in the street.

They scattered,throwing away the sticks which they were using as rifles, as the car lights fell upon them. But the host, an American resident of Panama, looked back curiously and said, at last:

"There'll be a revolution here one of these days. It will be quiet. A group of substantial citizens will go to the President's palace some morning and tell President Arosemena he's through. They'll put in a new president, and if what I hear is true it may be Dr. Harmodio Arias.

"He's a lawyer here—only 44, well educated and trusted. He's a full-blooded Panamanian who went to England as a boy and worked his own way through an English university. Everybody thinks well of him. . . ."

The revolution happened January 2, just about as it was predicted. The reasons are rooted deeply and somewhat vaguely in Panama's commercial life.

There have been charges that Dr. Arosemena was administering the republic's financial affairs carelessly, that tax remissions were made to favored interests, that the national debt of $16,000,000 (incurred largely in the last five years) was too large for a country whose chief revenue is the $250,000 the United States pays to it yearly in rental for the Panama Canal Zone.

"The public won't get very excited," the forecaster of revolution had said. "Nobody bothers much about voting here unless he's a policeman or a road worker."

The police and the road workers are Panama's chief groups of public servants, and the national road is the republic's principal public work.

It runs from the Canal Zone northward for 200 miles along the Pacific slope of the Isthmus, linking half a dozen interior towns with the Canal and Panama City. It is a link in what road enthusiasts of two continents hope will some day be a Pan-American highway from Canada to Argentina.

There isn't much traffic on the road, since the villages it links have little commerce or common interest, but Panama is proud of it. Most of the national debt was incurred in building it.

Some scores of road workers are employed in its maintenance, and dozens more of police patrol it.

The police also patrol the principal cities of the republic—Panama City and Cristobal, at opposite ends of the Canal. They are the republic's standing army.

Panama agreed with the United States years ago to maintain no other, but to call on United States troops if it needed military aid.

Save where the road runs, through jungle and then over a plateau, Panama is largely wilderness. Its southern interior has no roads, and no railroads but the "Banana Lines" maintained by fruit companies. Its northern interior, once one leaves the national road, is equally unconquered.

Cattle can't be raised on range lands because of wood ticks. Farming is impractical because of the long dry season. So Panama is a "Banana Republic," and the close to two million dollars' worth of bananas it exports are worth more than all its other products combined.

But in Panama City itself there is life and music and beauty.

Facing marble-tiled public squares with their inevitable bandstands in the center are churches, palaces and public buildings.

The presidential palace of white marble, filling the space inside a high iron fence, is guarded by soldiers who stand solemnly about the great pool under the rotunda.

The ground floor of the palace houses the republic's national bank; the upper floors are the home and offices of the president.

Hard by is the national theatre, which for several months a year is the meeting place of the one-house national assembly, and which now and then gives hospice to some foreign grand opera troupe, pausing on its way to South America.

Within a few square blocks the city is concentrated. Leading away toward the Canal Zone and government buildings is the Avenue Central, Panama City's shopping street, studded with Oriental bazaars and cabarets.

Panama is not a country of revolution, thanks perhaps to United States influence. It has not had a serious uprising, until this one, since it declared itself independent of Colombia almost three decades ago.
